

HABS
DC,
WASH,
414-

The Dresden Apartment Building
2126 Connecticut Ave., N.W.
Washington
District of Columbia

HABS No. DC-565

PHOTOGRAPHS

WRITTEN HISTORICAL AND DESCRIPTIVE INFORMATION

Historic American Buildings Survey
National Park Service
Department of the Interior
Washington, D.C. 20013-7127

HABS
DC,
WASH,
414-

HISTORIC AMERICAN BUILDINGS SURVEY

THE DRESDEN APARTMENT BUILDING

HABS No. DC-565

Location: 2126 Connecticut Ave., N.W., corner of Kalorama Rd., Washington, District of Columbia.

Significance: This sweeping apartment building was built by the most prolific developer of apartment buildings, Harry Wardman, and designed by his in-house architect, Albert H. Beers.

Description: This seven-story building has a curved facade and Classical Revival trim. The brick load-bearing walls are faced with red brick and stone trim. The building was constructed with forty-nine units.

History: This apartment building was constructed in 1909 by owner/builder Harry Wardman. The architect was Albert H. Beers and the estimated cost of construction was $250,000. (D.C. Building Permit #3184, March 2, 1909.)

Sources: Apartment Building Survey conducted by Tracerries, 1986.

Historian: Alison K. Hoagland, HABS, May 1988.